

OrangeHRM ranked among the top projects on SourceForge.net

OrangeHRM – the Open Source Human Resource Information System (HRIS) – is ranked as the fourth best solution in the category of Enterprise projects and is among the top ten of all projects, listed on SourceForge.net.

New Jersey, USA (February 9, 2007). OrangeHRM Inc. announces that it achieved the 4th place ranking as an Enterprise solution and 10th position among projects of all categories, listed on the directory of open source software – SourceForge.net.

"We are very pleased, that OrangeHRM is being highly recognized by the Open Source community", says Sujee Saparamadu, the Chief Executive Officer of OrangeHRM Inc. "We believe that achieved top rankings show that OrangeHRM is establishing firmly among the human resource management systems, offering our users the benefits of the flexible solution free of charge. Moreover, it is being constantly developed and enhanced in regards with suggestions and requirements of the vast user community."

OrangeHRM is targeted at small to medium size enterprises. It reflects the main areas of HR Management from simple personnel administration to today's complex strategic approaches. OrangeHRM is a perfect platform for re-engineering organization's HR processes and redefining the workflow operations of HR professionals, paving the way to a new level of HR Management.

SourceForge.net is the world's largest software development web site, hosting more than 140,000 projects. It has the largest repository of Open Source code and applications available on the Internet.

For more information please visit www.orangehrm.com or contact:

OrangeHRM Inc.

Darija Jevtuchova
Community Manager
tel: +94-11-2699754 / +1-650-2158015
Email: info@orangehrm.com